● ABOUT ME

I am a dedicated lecturer and Social Science researcher with over three years of experience teaching university courses in Pakistan Studies, International Relations, and Research Methodology. I excel at creating engaging curricula and delivering interactive lectures. I have strong skills in conducting independent research, analyzing data, and writing research papers, with multiple publications to my name. I am experienced in curriculum development, classroom management, and using tools like Microsoft Office and Google Docs. I am passionate about climate change research, feudalism, and social welfare policies in Pakistan. I am also committed to professional growth through workshops and continuous learning.
