Flounders of Life

Life seems to have manifold of waves turning upside down. The facets of life are entangled so tightly that one seems to be in the same sphere every time. The time seems to be stagnant resisting to change but the each day dusk and dawn reminds that the journey of life is constantly moving ahead. A wise thinking of a balanced life with happiness waving sorrow and sorrow waving happiness wonders me that who in this vast world is gifted with this bestowed blessing of a balanced life. A wisdom that I often question myself; is the happiness self-driven and sorrow self-built?

Deeply engrossed into the lore's of thought, looking into the sinking sun and then its rise, I wonder if it gives a ray of hope to a sinking heart and a soul. I cherish nature that how beautifully it remains within its frame of life to fulfill its responsibility as prescribed for it by Allah Almighty. But, Alas! The mankind; the superior of all the creatures has not learnt to cherish, acknowledge and value its own frame of life; the blessing bestowed by Allah Almighty and spend years of their passionate life messing up the lives of the fellow mankind. Alas! The mankind, the superior of all living kinds in the whole world has kept itself deprived of the true essence of life which is full of ardor and fervor. Alas! The mankind has developed a thought process that is governed by the thinking of others but has kept aside its own wisdom and generosity.

Anxiety, despair, guilt, annoyance, impatience are the common traits of today's mankind. Centuries of inhabitations have passed but the humankind has shied away from enlightenment. Enlightened to stay within their own sphere of doings, enlightened to discourage intervention, enlightened to stop criticizing, enlightened to respect the values of others, enlightened to respect the relationships, enlightened to let the people stay happy, enlightened to respect religion, enlightened to stop shattering the trust of two people. Enlightened! Enlightened! I think, the mankind is estranged from it. The mankind is not in a mood to be associated with it. For the mankind, it seems to be something that is unachievable. For the mankind, it is not the need of the civilized society to engrave the profound values and exercise peace and kindness.

Ah! Deeply engrossed into the lore's of thought, looking into the sinking sun, I eagerly wait for a knock of enlightened dawn tomorrow!
